Focused and Integrated.

In theory, software applications make businesses more productive. In practice, however, this isn't always the case. As specialized software becomes more efficient, it also becomes more complex. This complexity demands that more resources are allocated to ensure software is used to its full potential.

Solvera Solutions can help. Our consultants develop, integrate and support enterprise systems and mobile applications using proven processes and platforms, including Microsoft®-based technologies and industry proven open source technologies like Java®.

Gold Microsoft Partner

Solvera's Application Development Centre (ADC) includes a Systems Development Life Cycle (SDLC) with a library of standardized templates, support material and interactive training aids for client-tailored projects. We have extensive experience with customized code generation, source code management, software modeling and development process optimization. We can also adapt to existing environments and support application development. Our ADC accelerates the capabilities of internal Information Technology (IT) departments to create and sustain enterprise-grade software.

Solvera's Centre of Excellence in Microsoft SharePoint® integrates our expertise in information management and analytics, governance, business process and project management to deliver business-critical solutions. Solvera is a part of Microsoft's elite Business-Critical SharePoint Program (BCSP), reserved for solutions providers who excel at getting the most value out of their client's SharePoint and line of business systems.

When you're prepared to take your organization to a higher level, consider partnering with Solvera for application services. We have the people, processes and tools to deliver and support consistent, high-quality solutions.
